

Seen from a Christian perspective all of life is a 'gift', entrusted by a loving creator God to humankind for a purpose. This purpose is glimpsed as the creative spirit within each person learns to value and explore, celebrate and enjoy this world in all its mystery and diversity. With this gift comes a mutual responsibility to ensure the creation is not spoiled, but rather sustained and enjoyed by all.

Family activities.....

- Allow time for unstructured, child-directed, imaginative play unhindered by adult direction
- Read for pleasure and participate in the arts
- Make mistakes and fail – being afraid of failure will curb creative thought

Creativity can take many forms: producing a piece of artwork; writing a story, a song or piece of music; making anything; acting and dancing; and even finding new and different ways to solve problems. Everyone has the ability to be creative – you just need to give your imagination freedom to explore.

For reflection.....

- How do we encourage our children to exercise responsibility towards their environment?
- How do various areas of the curriculum promote creativity and enjoyment?
- In what ways do we support children's spiritual development by encouraging the use of all senses to experience the wonder of creation?
